Moussa Ibn Maymoun Synagogue

Moussa Ibn Maymoun Synagogue is one of the most famous synagogues that are currently opened to visitors at the Jews Alley in al-Moezz street in Cairo. It was built by Moussa Ibn Maymoun, also known as «Abu Omran» who was a religious figure and a Jewish physician. He was born in Cordoba in 1135 AD/ 529 Hijri, and moved with his family to Palestine. Finally, he settled in Egypt where he lived until his death in 1204 AD/ 601 Hijri, where he buried inside the synagogue. His remains were later transported to Palestine. Ibn Maymoun wrote many books in philosophy and medicine. He also worked as a physician at the court of Salah al-Din al-Ayyubi. Because of his fine reputation as a physician, Jews who suffered from a sickness or an ailment came to visit his synagogue at the Jews Alley, staying there overnight in a room attached to the synagogue to pray for healing and receive blessings.

The synagogue’s entrance is located on Darb Mahmoud Street. The entrance consists of an iron door in a form of a half-circular necklace and is surrounded by marble.

Above the entrance there is a carving representing the two tablets containing the Ten Commandments, on top of an open book with Hebrew inscriptions, and framed at the top with Hebrew writings. The synagogue is divided into three areas: the first contains the prayer area of the synagogue; the second includes the tomb, where the body of Moussa Ibn Maymoun was buried, before it was moved to Palestine, with a small room next to it, where the sick stayed overnight to pray for healing, and in addition has a well. The third area consists of several rooms for the priests and the supervisors working at the synagogue.

The prayer area consists of two floors: the first floor is for men, while the second one is for women. A sanctuary made of wood and carved with foliage motifs, is located in the middle of the eastern wall of the synagogue. The sanctuary is accessible by a marble stairway, and it has a small closet used for storing the Old Testament. In front of the sanctuary is a hole in the floor that is 50 cm in length. The platform designated for prayer and reading lies in the middle of the synagogue, and is accessible by a few marble steps.

The synagogue is open for visit every day from 9:00 am to 5:00 pm. The entry fee is included in the collective ticket for Al-Moezz Street monuments, which can be purchased from the ticket booth at the Qalawun Complex.
